

Atlas Profilax

In the summer of 2001 Michael Hane and I met during a Tai Chi class. Both being Certified Massage Therapists there was an instant bond. Over the past several years I was blessed to have Michael become my only Therapist I'd employ for my couples massages.

During my training as a Watsu Practitioner in August 1997 my neck was injured by a fellow student showing off. My entire spine was snapped in a snake like manner thus my neck and back were paralyzed for 3 days. My body never truly recovered from the injury, add 4 years as a bodyworker equals a great deal of daily pain.

Early 2004, after complaining of my painful neck during a massage treatment Michael suggested I speak with his father Ted.

Ted Hane a healer from Switzerland who was first person offering Atlas ProFilax treatments in America is treating patients at his son's home before returning to Switzerland.

Atlasprofilax, currently offered in ten countries, realigns the topmost spinal vertebra called C1 or the Atlas. The treatment involved the massaging (including the use of a pulsating probe) of the soft tissue surrounding the C1 vertebra. A one-time 15-minute process.

A 15-minute process that changed my life. While being comforted by Ted during the pulsating probe process I heard and felt a pop, a release from pain like no type of bodywork I'd ever experience. Free flowing energy gushed through my entire body. Tears of relief flowed just as freely. I knew in that instant I have been blessed with healing and that a deep wrong and been righted.

The next morning was the first time in years I woke without pain in my neck. My spirit also recognized the release and my conscious energy vibrated at a new higher level. Thus, my entire massage and energy healing practice has benefited from my experience with the Atlas Profilax method.
